DESCRIPTION

The Knappogue Castle Cask Finish Series is a range of single malts finished in the finest wine casks. The Marchesi di Barolo limited release is matured in bourbon barrels for a minimum of 12 years, then further aged in casks from the renowned Barolo Winery. Made exclusively from malted barley, distilled in copper pot stills, this expression is non-chilled filtered and bottled at 92 proof.

Knappogue, pronounced Nah'pogue, translates to "hill of the kiss" in Gaelic and is named after a beautiful 15th century castle that stands in County Clare, Ireland. The castle was purchased in the 1960s by Mark Edwin Andrews and his wife. He was a pioneer, known for collecting and bottling single malt and pure pot still whiskey at a time when only blended whiskey was popular in Ireland and around the world.

The Knappogue Castle Single Malt Irish Whiskey portfolio includes the 12, 14, 16, limited edition 21 year old whiskey and, of course, the renowned Knappogue Castle 1951, revered by connoisseurs as the oldest and rarest Irish whiskey commercially available.

THE WINERY

The Marchesi di Barolo estate encompasses approximately 430 acres of vineyards in the Langhe, some of the finest in Piedmont, including the prestigious Cannubi cru. The cellars are located in the village of Barolo, overlooking the Renaissance Castle of the Marchesi Falletti di Barolo. Somewhat modern in their approach, the Barolos from this winery pay tribute to the wine-making heritage of this territory; the wines offer excellent ripeness and harmony.

Today, Marchesi di Barolo remains a family business. Since 2006, the estate has been under the direction of fifth-generation winemaker, Ernesto Abbona and his wife Anna, who have inherited a longstanding winemaking tradition and a love of the vineyards and its wines.

TASTING NOTES

NOSE: Fruity with aromas of strawberries, cinnamon buns, banana fritters and caramel toffees.

TASTE: A great mix of spice and fruit characters. Red apples, berry fruit and red cherries.

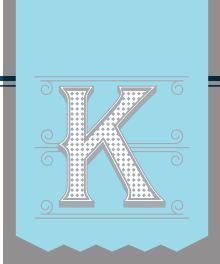

FINISH: Hints of peppery oak leads to a spicy finish.
